

A man in a dark suit and tie is standing in a dimly lit office hallway, opening a glass door. The hallway is lined with glass-walled offices, and the lighting is low, creating a serious and professional atmosphere. The man is looking down at something in his hands as he opens the door.

When Seconds Count, Count on Video Alarm Verification

A Higher Level of Protection for Your Business, Employees and Assets

Picture What Video Alarm Verification Can Do

When an alarm is real, every second counts. With video alarm verification, video clips are sent to you and your central monitoring station when an alarm is tripped – helping to determine event severity and arm first responders with the information they need to act quickly.

- Can alert authorities to potentially dangerous situations prior to arrival onsite
- Visual evidence of shoplifting, burglary, employee theft, vandalism, and trespassing
- Video clips may help identify perpetrators and aid in apprehension, prosecution, and recovery of stolen merchandise
- Camera access is restricted to authorized personnel during an alarm event and is inaccessible after 20 minutes – helping to ensure a higher level of privacy
- Know what's going on at your business during an alarm with alerts and look-in capability via your Resideo Total Connect Remote Services account
- Searchable clip and image library with high-capacity cloud and email storage options
- Meets all local municipality alarm verification requirements
